Air Force to Control Missiles

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON IA The nation's top-ranking soldier says he has bowed to an order giving the Air Force control over long - range inissiles.

Gen. Maxwell Taylor, the Army chief of staff, made it clear yesterday he is taking no part in an Army-Air Force squabble growing out of the order by Secretary of De fense Wilson Inst November.

Taylor, questioned during a tele-vised in terview, said "Army poses more germs to its killing Taylor, questioned during a telespokesen, including myself , deended before the secretary of defense last November the need for a 1,500 - mile missie for the Army."
"We had our day in court, argued our case and we lost it," he said. "So far as I am concerned, that settles the issue upon that point." The Army chief said he did not try to outline his point of view to President Eisenhower. Taylor said Wilson was "a competent superior and I accepted his decision. In his November order, Wilson specified that the Army should nave responsibility for missiles with ranges of 200 miles or less, At the same time he assigned ado was the Mothers Day guest of the Air Force authority over her mother, Mrs. J. Needless to say that I have quite a bit of money in the pond known as the Hollis Luck pond, located back of the University Experiment Station. I hate to ask the public to please not ask me and to please not go out to fish the pond anymore. As you know, it is a small pond and wont take long to fish it out at the rate it

I only wish it was large enough to accomodate everybody as it is very hard for me to turn down anybody, but if I give permission to one person, then the other person thinks I should do the same. Therefore, I am compelled to ask that you please abide by this, as I do not want to have to post same,
